Big Oil Tanks Explode

Blazing Oil Rushes Down Hill to New Straitsville.

WORKMEN COME TO RESCUE

Realize Predicament of Panic-Stricken Citizens and Quickly Throw Up Dirt Dike Which Checks Progress of Fiery Element—Many Are Overcome by Heat While at Work and Are Carried Away Prostrated. Prises Are Being Sung as Heroes.

New Straitsville, O., July 19.—As barrels of burning oil raced down hill toward this city, hundreds of men risked their lives in an effort to stop the flow of the blazing torrent. Three tanks of oil, containing 250 barrels each, which were on a hill directly over the town, were struck by lightning, causing a terrific explosion, bursting the tanks of oil and sending the burning contents racing towards dozens of residences.

For a time people were panic-stricken as the fire could be seen bearing upon them. Men returning from work saw the flames and heard the screams of women. They rushed to meet the flames with shovels and picks. In a few minutes they had constructed a dam which held the burning fluid in check.

Many men fell exhausted as their work was finished. They were carried away from the dam before the oil reached the obstruction. Twelve other tanks, each of the same capacity as those destroyed, were not damaged. They were the property of the Comfort Oil and Gas company. Those affected by heat and exertion have recovered and are being praised for their heroic work.

PAGEANTRY is in the air this summer. Representations of incidents of local historical interest through the mediums of tableaux, dances and the like, which have for a number of years been popular in England and this country, are more in vogue than ever before. One of the earliest of this season's pageants was that presented at Croton-on-Hudson for the benefit of the local health league. Many of the descendants of the early Dutch settlers took part in costumes and with settings historically accurate. The illustration shows the miller's ten children as they troop out of the old mill to eat their breakfast in the open air. Not only were the costumes of the colonial period, but the songs sung during the two days of the representation were those in words and music familiar to the Dutch ancestors of many of the present day dwellers in the Hudson valley.

Where Is Wilson?

Wireless President Disappears When Taken to New York as Witness.

New York, July 19.—Colonel Christopher Columbus Wilson, the president of the United Wireless Telegraph company, who a year ago last May was sentenced to three years in the federal prison at Atlanta after he and his associates had been convicted of using the mails to defraud, isn't in the Atlanta prison and he isn't in the Tombs, nor is he in the Ludlow street jail. In fact the only persons who say they have run across Wireless Wilson lately, or since he was brought here from Atlanta in the spring under federal custody to testify in bankruptcy proceedings, are various folk who say they have met and talked to the convict recently while he was having his shoes shined in lower Broadway, or visiting office buildings or out around the summer home his wife has rented for the season at Spring Valley.

Wilson, when he first arrived in town, was taken to the Tombs. The warden of the Tombs said that Wireless Wilson left there, presumably to give testimony, on July 1, and that the Tombs hasn't seen him since. The warden at the Tombs and also at the Ludlow street prison say they do not know where Keeper Shea has his charge.

Theater Crowd In Panic. Canton, O., July 19.—Five hundred persons were thrown into temporary panic in the Meyers Lake theater by a storm that blew in the double doors in the rear of the stage and scattered scenery and drops among the players. A panic was averted by one of the actors starting a dance on the disordered stage.

Jailed For Corrupt Practices. Waverly, O., July 19.—G. B. Eylar and Otto Foreau, indicted for corrupt practices, were fined $200 and remanded to jail until the fine and costs are paid, following a plea of guilty before Common Pleas Judge W. H. Middleton. Eylar is a candidate for recorder on the Democratic ticket this fall.

Child Drowns In Ditch. Findlay, O., July 19.—While visiting near Leipsic Little Pauline Halstead of this city tripped and was thrown from a bridge, falling into a ditch, and was drowned before help could reach her.

Torpedo Boats Sink Warships

Special to Herald.

Constantinople, July 19.—Eight torpedo boats today attacked entrance to the Dardanelles and during the engagement two warships are reported having been sunk with all on board, causing great loss of life.

The engagement is one of the worst of the Turko-Italian war.

Son Follows Father's Wish

Julia Connors' Slayer Ends Life by Gas Route.

New York, July 19.—The body of Nathan Swartz, whose father informed the police that his son was the slayer of 14-year-old Julia Connors, was found on the fourth floor of a tenement house in Chrystie street. Swartz had committed suicide by inhaling gas. The body was identified by Detective Joseph Brennan.

Written in lead pencil on his collar were the words: "I am guilty and insane. Caused by the beautiful women." There were several pieces of newspaper lying around, and on one of these was written the sentence: "I was sorry the minute after I did it. So don't cry for me."

A letter was found addressed to Swartz's mother, in which he confessed his guilt and telling her not to cry her eyes out. Later Philip Swartz, a brother of the slayer of the Connors girl, identified the dead man as his brother.

Only a few days before Swartz's father informed the police that his son had told him that he had killed the Connors girl, to which the father responded that there was nothing left but for the son to commit suicide.

Motorcycle Convention to Discuss Tank Riding and Other Evils.

Columbus, O., July 19.—Eddie Hasha of Dallas, Tex., who established a world's four-mile competition record at the opening of the Columbus motordrome July 4, won the 10-mile race for professional riders at the first day's racing of the tenth annual Federation of American Motorcyclists' meet at the new saucer track.

Lawmakers of the Federation of American Motorcyclists may make some important new regulations at the session here today. Principal among reforms agitated are rules against tank riding, speeding and extra noises.

JACK ROSE GIVES HIMSELF UP

Gambler Friend of Lieutenant Becker Admits Hiring Gray Automobile In Which Murderers Drove to Scene of New York's Latest Crime, but Denies He Was With Party When Shooting Occurred—Names One Member of Murderous Gang.

New York, July 19.—William Shapiro, part owner of the auto that played such a prominent part in the assassination of Gambler Herman Rosenthal, added to his previous confession the statement that policemen had knowledge of what his passengers were going to do and that nobody was in any danger. The other important development in the case was the surrender of Bald Jack Rose, Lieutenant Becker's friend.

Bald Jack told a tale to the district attorney of the busiest night he ever spent in his life—last Monday night—when he worked up evidence for his friend Becker against Rosenthal and then went on the auto ride that had for its purpose the death of Rosenthal. The most important part of his revelations was the name of a gambler and gang fighter who rode in the Libby-Shapiro car with him and Itzke and Shapiro. This man's name is Schaaps and half the police department are sweeping the town for him.

Did Not Question Shapiro.

Shapiro's story, offered to the district attorney, is evidence that the man in his fear and hatred of the police is willing to become a state's witness if the district attorney will let him, emphasized Mr. Whitman's belief that the killing of Rosenthal did not spring from the enmity of a clique of gamblers. Mr. Whitman did not question Shapiro. But he will collect the details of Shapiro's information and estimate their value. In line with Shapiro's hints comes information from an official of the police department to the district attorney "that it looks after all as if policemen had been mixed up in the Rosenthal case."

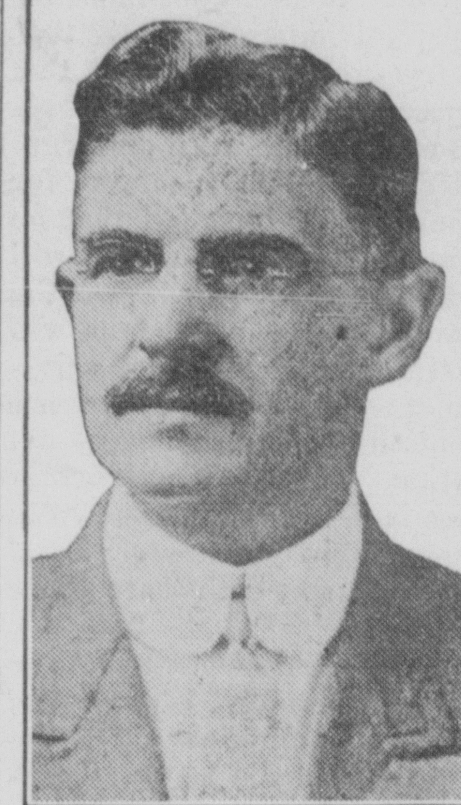

This factor in the situation has produced two new features. Mayor Gaynor, not satisfied with the explanation that Rosenthal was slain in a gamblers' feud, has begun an investigation to determine what policemen might have had an interest in Rosenthal's murder.

Wants All Short-Weight Dealers Prosecuted Under Law.

Will Prosecute The Dealers Who Violate State Laws

Speaker at Sealers' Convention Wants Laws Enforced.

Columbus, O., July 19.—Any dealer who sells a commodity short weight, knowingly or unintentionally, would be liable to prosecution if the official sealers of the state were to make the laws. So declared Benjamin H. Gayman of the food commissioners' department before the convention of Ohio sealers. He spoke on the subject "New Legislation." The present provision that prosecution can not be made unless it is proven that the short measure was given with the knowledge of the seller serves as a loophole in action against the dealer.

Entire Family Wiped Out Of Existence

Nine Drowned In Cloudburst While Seeking Father.

Jacobs Creek, Pa., July 19.—It became known here that nine persons had been drowned in Barren run, on the farm of John Raymond, near here.

The dead: Mrs. John Raymond; Mike Rovinsky, brother of Mrs. Raymond; Mrs. Rovinsky, mother of Mrs. Raymond; six children of Mr. and Mrs. John Raymond.

During a heavy storm which swept through this section Raymond went from his house to the barn, located in a ravine near Barren run. He did not return, and after waiting two hours the wife, her children and the other members of the family became frightened and went in search of him. As they reached the ravine a wall of water swept down and carried them away. Raymond was safe in the barn and escaped.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 19.—Fourteen men will manage the campaign of Governor Woodrow Wilson for the presidency of the United States. Eight of them are members of the national Democratic committee and six are from outside the organization. A finance committee of from 35 to 40 men, selected from all parts of the country, will collect the funds in collaboration with committees on finance to be organized in every state, from suggestions of the respective national committees. Committees on publicity, on speakers and what not, also to be organized, will look after details of the fight. Hard working progressive Democrats, no matter what may have been their choice before the convention, will be utilized in many ways. Chairman William F. McCombs and the nine men invited by Governor Wilson to work out details in pursuance of the authorization of the national committee, met at Sea Girt and, after a half-hour of conferring, it became known that the 10, with four added, are to be the board of directors of the campaign. Governor Wilson himself made the announcement because he had acted as secretary of the meeting, and he read off the following list:

MEDICAL EDUCATION IN EUROPE.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has just issued its second bulletin on medical education, this time dealing with conditions found in Europe. This report, similar to the one issued two years ago, is based on investigations made by Mr. Abraham Flexner for the foundation. The report confirms the statements made by The Journal of the American Medical Association four years ago, that the medical schools in this country are backward not only in the matter of preliminary education but also in the length of the medical course.

No other country was found to have conditions so bad as those found in the United States, or as President Pritchett expresses it, "scandals in medical education exist in America alone." Again, "no medical school that lacks proper facilities has any other motive than the selfish advantage of those that carry it on; and no civilized country except America at this day allows such enterprises to impose on the public."

The report furnishes a definite reply to the worn-out argument that cheap schools are needed to furnish doctors for sparsely settled districts of the country. It is stated that no physician, whether he be poorly equipped or well equipped, will seek a location where a livelihood cannot be gained. On the other hand, it was shown that well-educated physicians will often prefer the sparsely settled districts if the means of a livelihood are to be obtained there. In other words, the experience of Germany shows that the distribution of physicians does not depend on a low standard of education. The report also brings out the fact that sectarian medicine is practically unknown in Europe and that this is the only country in which educational institutions professing to teach sectarian medicine are to be found.

The report on medical education abroad comes at an opportune time. We are in the midst of a period of rapid development of medical education and this report, based on the investigation of European medical schools, made at first hand, will be a great help in the solution of many of our problems. Although, by contrast with medical education abroad, many defects are seen in conditions in this country, the many improvements already brought about leave no ground for discouragement. It must not be forgotten that although the determined movement for better medical education in this country began only about eight years ago, astonishing progress has been made since that time. Our vast oversupply of inferior medical schools is rapidly being reduced. Where there were 166 medical schools in the United States in 1904—nearly half of the world's supply—now there are only 115. On the other hand, the number of colleges which have high standards for admission and which are equipped to do good work is rapidly increasing. Instead of only three in 1904 there are now forty-six which are requiring one or more years of collegiate work for admission. Again, state licensing boards are rapidly improving their standards and strengthening their examinations, which is helping to solve the problem. From present indications, therefore, it will need only a few more years to bring the majority of our medical schools both in their requirements of preliminary education and in the quality of their teaching up to a point that will compare quite favorably with the standards upheld in other civilized countries.

Subtle Nerves Are Hard to Control

By WILLIAM G. JOHNSON, Altoona, Pa.

In a railway or other accident a man may be scared within an inch, or even within half an inch, of his life; he may get such a fright as will all but kill him, but unless the fear leaves permanent and painful physical effects, he has no redress in a suit for damages. A decision handed down by a North Carolina court says that "mere fright is not actionable." A person must suffer both in body and in mind and be made sick in order to recover damages.

That sounds like good common sense, and it is doubtless good law, but can a general rule be applied in all cases? Suppose two persons occupy a seat in a railway car that is wrecked, but neither is injured physically in the least. Suppose also that one of the two is hardy, robust, courageous, with a strong nervous organization, while the other is weak, timid, with shattered nerves. The shock might easily cause the nervous person to suffer both in mind and in body and be made sick, while the other escaped with no unpleasant permanent effects whatever.

Would the fright in one case be actionable, and not actionable in the other? Would the railway company be held responsible for the nervous condition of all the passengers? In that case it might be necessary to have specialist to examine passengers before they board the trains or trolley cars, in order that the company might not be liable. Such delicate and subtle things as nerves are hard to control, even by profound and well-established principles of law.

Poetry-Today

THE DRUMS OF MEMORY.

Beat the drums of memory
In a low and lulling key,
Till my feet go marching on
Through the twilight and the dawn,
Backward through the paths of time
Into that enchanted clime
Where the blossoms never fade,
Where the sunshine and the shade
Dance in dapples on the grass
Of the orchards that I pass.

Beat the drums of memory
Till they thrill the soul of me,
And I foot the hazy miles,
Into long-forgotten whiles,
Find the meadow and the brook
And the vine-hid forest nook,
Till the world that was of old—
World aglow with rose and gold—
Lures me with its hopes, forsooth,
As it did when I had youth.

Beat the drums of memory—
Call the boys I used to know
Let the roll a rally be!
In the wondrous long ago—
Call them all from field and foam,
Till again we are at home,
Let us boast, and do and dare,
Having neither fret nor care;
Let us laugh at the far page
Where it told the tale of age.

Beat the drums of memory
Till the old songs come to me,
Till I murmur faded tunes,
Hum contented olden croons,
And the boy days all are mine;
Till my veins pulse with the wine
Of the days that were, made new
As I find my pathway through
All the ever-calling ways
Of the living yesterdays.

ABLE TO TRANSLATE LATIN.

Long years ago an Indiana candidate for congress was making a stump speech. Two merchants, who had been boys together and in the same class in Latin, heard the speech. The speaker closed his peroration in full, round voice, with "Vox populi, vox Dei!"

Tom turned to William and remarked, "Bill, I'll bet you $5 that you don't remember enough Latin to translate that sentence."

"Make it ten," replied William, "and I'm on."

The bet was made and William translated as follows: "Vox populi, vox Dei—My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me!"

Without protest Tom passed over a $10 bill, remarking, half-regretfully, half-admiringly: "William, I really didn't think you would be able to do it."

The Lion Tamer.

"Why ain't the lion tamer here?" asked the manager of the circus. "It's time for the show to begin and he ain't nowhere around."

"Haven't you heard about him?" replied the ringmaster. "He married the midget this morning, and she chased him out across the hills back of town a little while ago because he flirted with one of the lady bareback riders."

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

NEARLY EVERY AILMENT HAS THIS BAD EFFECT.

One Great Cause Is Eye-Strain From Which City People Suffer Especially Because Their Vision Is Restricted.

Almost every little or great ailment throughout your system affects your nerves. Your eyes and liver and lungs and stomach and heart and many other things throughout your system all "take it out" on the poor nerves if they happen to be a bit out of order themselves.

Recent discoveries show that ninety per cent of nervous troubles are due to other disorders. Eye-strain is one cause. Not only those who have to use their eyes constantly, like students and lapidaries and miniature artists and engravers, but city folks who live and work where their vision is restricted, are all sufferers from nervous troubles, more or less.

The eye wants to get exercise as well as the muscles. Living in narrow streets and gazing out across little alleys against brick walls, rushing into narrow cars and hurrying into small rooms, all keep the vision down to narrow limits and pretty soon eye-strain sets in and this brings on nervous trouble.

And one of the peculiarities of this is that many people will not notice that they have eye-strain because the nervous disorder that results will be so much worse than the cause. Eye-strain is much less common in the country.

Working in a stooped position, curving the spine, brings pressure on the tiny blood vessels and this in turn acts on the nerves. "I get so nervous sitting still," one will say. As a matter of fact the continual pressure on the spine reacts on the nerves. As sedentary occupations are more common in the cities there is more nervousness from this cause in cities.

Liver troubles bring on quick nervous disorders; city noises in time effect the ears and the nerves are again in for a siege of trouble. Not even at night or during sleep is there complete quiet in the city. Women become irritable because of excessive blood pressure, and again it is their nerves that suffer—also every one else about them is apt to suffer.

How to Slide Down a Rope.

Sliding down a rope is not so simple as it seems. Few boys know how to do it properly. If you try to descend by letting the rope slide through your hands the friction will burn the palms so that you will have to let go after a few feet. If you try to lower your weight from one handhold to another you are sure to become tired and will be forced to drop. You cannot slide with the rope between your knees, for the swaying of your body will jerk the rope out of the clutch of your knees and then you are likely to fall.

The easiest and safest method you can employ is that used by firemen and sailors. Standing upright, throw out your right leg and give it a turn round the rope. Next put the rope in the crook of your right elbow and clasp it tightly, not in your hand, but in your arm.

In that way you can slide to safety without the slightest trouble. The rope does not touch any part of the body that is not protected by clothing and your speed can be regulated by either straightening or cramping your leg. Once learned, this method of sliding down a rope may prove in an emergency the means of saving your life or the lives of other persons.—Youth's Companion.

Moon Blindness.

A naval correspondent of the London Standard has written from Port of Spain, Trinidad, stating that in his travels he had come across many cases of moon blindness, caused by men sleeping with the moon shining upon them, such cases occurring principally in the tropics and the Mediterranean.

Strange to say, adds the Trinidad correspondent, men so affected can see in daylight, but cannot do so when dusk sets in. Mr. Elgie further quotes from a communication made by a New Zealand correspondent to a weekly scientific journal. This correspondent was, many years ago, an apprentice on the Liverpool ship Langdale, an East India trader.

Once when the ship was between St. Helena and the line some of the crew slept on deck, fully exposed to the glare of the brilliant moon. When they awoke three of them were quite moon blind. They had to be led about at night and the ropes put into their hands.

Talk English in Frankfurt.

"Frankfurt has a large English-speaking population," says a letter from that city to the New York Tribune, "and there are not many business establishments where one cannot find a person who is responsible for the sign 'English Spoken Here.' As to the quality of the shop English, it is usually below that of the waiter English, but it is good enough. But we had further proof of the American influence while on a motor trip to Nauen a few days ago. On a field still bumpy with frost we saw a lot of boys playing baseball. The game would have been condemned as 'bum' by the youngsters of our 'fans,' but we watched it with interest and enjoyed it, although one of our party said that it seemed to him like a Mark Twain story told in Plattdeutsch.

MEDICAL EDUCATION IN EUROPE.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has just issued its second bulletin on medical education, this time dealing with conditions found in Europe. This report, similar to the one issued two years ago, is based on investigations made by Mr. Abraham Flexner for the foundation. The report confirms the statements made by The Journal of the American Medical Association four years ago, that the medical schools in this country are backward not only in the matter of preliminary education but also in the length of the medical course.

No other country was found to have conditions so bad as those found in the United States, or as President Pritchett expresses it, "scandals in medical education exist in America alone." Again, "no medical school that lacks proper facilities has any other motive than the selfish advantage of those that carry it on; and no civilized country except America at this day allows such enterprises to impose on the public."

The report furnishes a definite reply to the worn-out argument that cheap schools are needed to furnish doctors for sparsely settled districts of the country. It is stated that no physician, whether he be poorly equipped or well equipped, will seek a location where a livelihood cannot be gained. On the other hand, it was shown that well-educated physicians will often prefer the sparsely settled districts if the means of a livelihood are to be obtained there. In other words, the experience of Germany shows that the distribution of physicians does not depend on a low standard of education. The report also brings out the fact that sectarian medicine is practically unknown in Europe and that this is the only country in which educational institutions professing to teach sectarian medicine are to be found.

The report on medical education abroad comes at an opportune time. We are in the midst of a period of rapid development of medical education and this report, based on the investigation of European medical schools, made at first hand, will be a great help in the solution of many of our problems. Although, by contrast with medical education abroad, many defects are seen in conditions in this country, the many improvements already brought about leave no ground for discouragement. It must not be forgotten that although the determined movement for better medical education in this country began only about eight years ago, astonishing progress has been made since that time. Our vast oversupply of inferior medical schools is rapidly being reduced. Where there were 166 medical schools in the United States in 1904—nearly half of the world's supply—now there are only 115. On the other hand, the number of colleges which have high standards for admission and which are equipped to do good work is rapidly increasing. Instead of only three in 1904 there are now forty-six which are requiring one or more years of collegiate work for admission. Again, state licensing boards are rapidly improving their standards and strengthening their examinations, which is helping to solve the problem. From present indications, therefore, it will need only a few more years to bring the majority of our medical schools both in their requirements of preliminary education and in the quality of their teaching up to a point that will compare quite favorably with the standards upheld in other civilized countries.

Subtle Nerves Are Hard to Control

By WILLIAM G. JOHNSON, Altoona, Pa.

In a railway or other accident a man may be scared within an inch, or even within half an inch, of his life; he may get such a fright as will all but kill him, but unless the fear leaves permanent and painful physical effects, he has no redress in a suit for damages. A decision handed down by a North Carolina court says that "mere fright is not actionable." A person must suffer both in body and in mind and be made sick in order to recover damages.

That sounds like good common sense, and it is doubtless good law, but can a general rule be applied in all cases? Suppose two persons occupy a seat in a railway car that is wrecked, but neither is injured physically in the least. Suppose also that one of the two is hardy, robust, courageous, with a strong nervous organization, while the other is weak, timid, with shattered nerves. The shock might easily cause the nervous person to suffer both in mind and in body and be made sick, while the other escaped with no unpleasant permanent effects whatever.

Would the fright in one case be actionable, and not actionable in the other? Would the railway company be held responsible for the nervous condition of all the passengers? In that case it might be necessary to have specialist to examine passengers before they board the trains or trolley cars, in order that the company might not be liable. Such delicate and subtle things as nerves are hard to control, even by profound and well-established principles of law.

THE DRUMS OF MEMORY.

Beat the drums of memory
In a low and lulling key,
Till my feet go marching on
Through the twilight and the dawn,
Backward through the paths of time

Into that enchanted clime
Where the blossoms never fade,
Where the sunshine and the shade
Dance in dapples on the grass
Of the orchards that I pass.

Beat the drums of memory
Till they thrill the soul of me,
And I loathe the hazy miles,
Into foot-forgotten miles,
Find the meadow and the brook
And the vine-hid forest nook,
Till the world that was of old—
World aglow with rose and gold—
Lures me with its hopes, forsooth,
As it did when I had youth.

Beat the drums of memory—
Call the boys I used to know
Let the roll a rally be!
In the wondrous long ago—
Call them all from field and foam,
Till again we are at home.
Let us boast, and do and dare,
Having neither fret nor care;
Let us laugh at the far page
Where it told the tale of age.

Beat the drums of memory
Till the old songs come to me,
Till I murmur faded tunes,
Hum contented olden croons,
And the boy days all are mine;
Till my veins pulse with the wine
Of the days that were, made new
As I find my pathway through
All the ever-calling ways
Of the living yesterdays.

MANUFACTURING ARTICLE FOR USE ALL OVER WORLD

Wonder Plant Secures Government Permit and Is Only Factory in America Building Poultry Racks Which Have Stamp of Approval of Uncle Sam. One of First Order Goes to England, While Other Foreign Dealers Write for Information.

It may be a surprise to many Washington citizens to learn that right here in our quiet little city of few factories, there is being manufactured an article which will be shipped to the four corners of the earth, and which requires the approval of the United States government before it can be made.

The article in question is no more or less than Galvanized Steel Poultry Racks for handling fowls in the most approved and sanitary manner, and, although the manufacture has just commenced at the Wonder Manufacturing Company's plant, inquiries from Canada, England and Germany have been received, and Hon. James Ruddin, Army and Navy contractor to the British government, has placed a large order for the poultry racks to be used in shipments to England.

The racks are so constructed that each one will hold 180 fowls, each suspended by the feet, and in such a manner that none of them touch. Armour, Swift & Company, and in fact all of the leading packers have adopted the racks, and as the local company is said to be the only one in the United States which has been granted a permit from the government to manufacture the racks, it will be seen that the demand will be great indeed, and that the manufacture of the racks alone should develop into a mammoth business.

The permit to manufacture the government approved racks was granted only after careful investigation of the work done by the Wonder Company.

Second Party Of Excursionists Home

The second party of the Dahl-Millikan excursionists who left this city Monday morning for an outing at Cedar Point and on Lake Erie, arrived in this city shortly after two o'clock Friday afternoon, tired but greatly pleased with the week's outing.

All are enthusiastic of the pleasant trip and the royal good time shown them by the Dahl-Millikan company.

The next and last section leaves this city Monday morning of the coming week, when about 300 more patrons of the concern will leave for a week at Cedar Point.

With the wheat out of the way the farmers are anxious for some clear weather so as to take care of the hay and oats crops. Oats in this section have been damaged quite a great deal by the recent rains and wind—the hay is of fine quality and the acreage is large.

Frank Dorn has this elevator in repair and is ready to take care of the wheat and oats crops.

Praises Local Y. M. C. A. Wants Greenfield to Act

The Greenfield Journal of today has the pleasure to say about the splendid Y. M. C. A. property in this city, and urges Greenfield citizens to get busy and erect a like institution:

"During a visit to Washington C. H., we had the pleasure of being shown through the new Y. M. C. A. building.

Washington C. H. is to be congratulated on having such a magnificent edifice for the entertainment of their young people. It is complete and up-to-date in every respect. The gymnasium proper is equipped with everything for the development of the physical make up of the young men who visit it from day to day. The living department is equipped with double deck beds, accommodating double the young men which it otherwise would hold, and the entire building throughout is finished in such a manner that it has a bright and cheerful appearance from top to bottom.

In the near future another wing will be completed in which the industrial school will be established, making it one of the most complete institutions of its kind in the state. The association has a splendid income from endowments given it by several public spirited citizens. It has a membership of nearly 400.

"Why can't the citizens of Greenfield take up this question and erect a building where the young people of our city can spend their spare time bettering their physical condition, as well as being surrounded with environments that will make them better morally and intellectually.

Greenfield should not fall behind her sister cities in anything that will help her young people. We have plenty of public spirited citizens here who are able to erect a building that will be a credit to our city. What man or woman is willing to erect a monument to themselves by taking the lead in this undertaking and pushing to completion?

Will Tax All Oil and Gas Wells

Anticipating the action of the people of the state next September in amending the constitution so as to provide a production tax upon oil and minerals, the State Tax Commission is now engaged in reaching out for the immense values of oil property which are now sequestered from the tax altogether, says a dispatch from Columbus. For months its experts have been at work gathering information relating to the value of oil and gas wells and of the amount of royalties paid by producers to owners of oil lands.

In many counties no effort has ever been made to get at these values and to secure from them a just share of the support of the cost of government; while in others only a nominal value was placed upon the pumping plants. The anomalous condition has been often created of the tax values of a horse grazing on property covering oil being greater than that of a flowing well worth a king's ransom.

Oil wells have a fixed and definite value for many years, the commercial unit of value of an oil well has been fixed at $1,000 per barrel production per day. That is, if a well with settled production supplies 10 barrels per day, in oil circles it is rated at $10,000.

It is the plan of the Tax Commissioners to have all these values added to the tax duplicate in the counties where the wells are located.

There are thousands of acres of land in the oil-producing territory that are held under oil leases, the producer paying a revenue per barrel for the risk in the development of the wells. The royalty thus derived is large, and adds, so the tax officials claim, very largely to the value of the land. They argue if one man, has an income of four or five hundred dollars per year royalty from the oil production of his land, while his neighbor alongside has no such income, that the man with the royalty is due to pay taxes covering the additional income from his property.

The preliminary reports from County Auditors now being received show they are putting the oil wells on at from $800 to $1,000 per barrel per day, according to location and commercial conditions, and that most of the owners are not making much objection. The same has been done in the royalty lands.

Tax records of the past years show that oil wells in the past were taxed at from $100 to $250, that being approximately the value of the rigs about the well. These rigs and machinery are personal property and have no relation to the actual tax value of the wells, so the Tax Commission holds.

Attorney Jones Confined to Home

Hon. Humphrey Jones has been unable to look after his office duties the past two days because of a very painful felon upon one finger of his right hand which has caused the hand and arm to become badly swollen, causing him intense pain.

Mr. Jones is somewhat better today, and hopes to be back at his desk within the next few days.

White Will Buy Shaker Farm

A special dispatch from Lebanon says:

"Archibald S. White, of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company, of Cincinnati, will move to Warren county when he completes the deal now pending for the purchase of the $1,000,000 estate of the Shakers at Union village, is the report which today startled the residents of this county.

"It is believed that the reason for the Standard Oil Company's spontaneous grant to furnish natural gas for Lebanon and vicinity after several very flat refusals to do so is the result of the deal with Mr. White, who will want natural gas on his model cattle and experiment farm, into which he proposes to convert the Shaker property after he gains control of it. The Standard Oil Company makes absolutely conditions now, while a few months ago it refused to bring natural gas to Lebanon unless a certain number of people agreed to sign contracts advance.

Judge J. A. Runyan, legal adviser of the Shakers today said: "I know nothing about Mr. White's plan other than that he expects to convert this property into a cattle and experimental farm, as I have been stated. I believe that the deal between him and the Shakers for the land (4,000 acres) will be completed to their mutual satisfaction within a few weeks.

Workshop Official Files Affidavits

Mrs. Augusta C. F. Miller of the department of Ohio Workshops and Factories was in this city Wednesday, Thursday and Friday inspecting local conditions which come under her department.

Besides ordering a number of changes she filed three affidavits charging the employing of minors under the age specified by the Child Labor laws of the State, and the cases will be heard later.

This is the first time arrests of the nature have been made in this city, and consequently it turns attention sharply to the child labor laws which are unusually strict in Ohio.

Gigantic Sign Attracts Attention

Will E. Dale has just installed a gigantic sign on top of the four-story building occupied by him, and it has attracted much attention and will attract still more when it is wired and lighted by electricity after night.

The one word "Dale's" stands out in letters eight feet in height, and are sheet steel strung on wire netting so that off a short distance, or at night, the letters alone are visible.

The big sign is visible for miles and after night will stand out sharp against the darkness, the shaded electric bulbs making it sharp and clear.

Plan Gigantic Merger Of Ohio Electric Roads

Deal Which May or May Not Hasten Line Through This City Is Pending and Some $127,000,000 Is Involved in the Transaction, It Is Claimed--Some Believe Party Who Passed Through Washington Recently Are Interested in the Merger.

A gigantic merger of interurban lines in southwestern Ohio, which may or may not mean the construction of a road from Cincinnati to Columbus at no late date, is now pending, and involves some $127,000,000 and the change of ownership of a number of the electric roads.

Some far-sighted persons see in the recent visit of a party of interurban builders who were going over the Columbus to Cincinnati route, some connection between their visit and the big merger now pending.

Just who the prospective purchasers of the roads are has not yet been announced but it is said the same interests which bought from A. S. White his holdings in the Columbia Gas & Electric company are in this project. The properties involved, according to reports in the Cincinnati financial district, are:

The Cincinnati, Dayton & Toledo Traction company; Cincinnati,

Georgetown & Portsmouth Traction company; the Cincinnati & Hamilton Traction company; the Cincinnati, Lawrenceville & Aurora Traction company; the Cincinnati, Milford & Loveland Interurban Railway & Terminal company and the Interurban & Terminal company.

The Ohio Traction company, which owns the Cincinnati Traction company, owns a large interest in the C. D. & T. company and is the lessee of the Cincinnati & Hamilton Traction company.

If the deal is consummated, it is considered among the possibilities that a new holding company would be formed to hold the securities of the Columbia company and the various traction companies along the same lines on which utility holding corporations are being combined the country over.

In a number of these combinations General Electric interests have been concerned, the combination, among other things, producing machinery and appliance customers of huge buying power firmly allied to the General Electric.

LOCAL GROCERMAN EXPLAINS REASONS

Why Apples Are Selling for the Present Price in This City Is Made Clear.

LOCAL DEALERS ARE VICTIMIZED

Compelled to Pay 80c for Three-peck "Bushels" and Sell Four Pecks by Weight—20c Per-bushel Price Merely a Local One in Some River Counties. Shipper Makes the Real Profit. Chance for Sealer of Weights and Measures to Protect Local Dealers.

One of the local grocermen who read the statement recently made that a man who had been in Southern Ohio had reported fancy apples being sold to dealers at 20c per bushel in one of the Ohio river cities, took exception to the statement, and explains the reason apples are selling at $1.50 or more per bushel in this city.

"Good apples cost us 80c per bushel in Athens and Ironton, and we pay the express or freight charges," said he, "and apples from Summit Station cost us $1.40 delivered at the local depots, so you can see it is utterly impossible for us to realize more than a very small profit when the 'bushels' sold us usually contain about three pecks and we sell a full bushel of four pecks by weight."

It will be seen by the above that the local dealers are not getting a square deal when it comes to full bushels, as they are compelled to purchase their apples by the measured bushel, and as the local dealers sell a full bushel by weight they are losers by the non-enforcement of the Weights and Measures law on the men who sell to them, and it offers a splendid opportunity for the Sealer of Weights and Measures to protect the local grocermen.

The price of 20c a bushel for apples is a local one in Gallia county, where practically every rural resident has a small orchard, and usually sells his apples in the local markets at that place for whatever he can get, while the shippers in that section are usually well paid for all the fruit they send to the northern markets.

UNCLEAN SIDEWALKS CAUSE OF COMPLAINT

Several citizens have complained of the sidewalk along the court house square from the fountain to Market street, where an overflow from the fountain and the washing of the court house lawn has made the sidewalk unsightly and very disagreeable for ladies to pass.

For some time the fountain has been allowed to overflow unchecked, and the north steps and a large place across the sidewalk are growing green and slimy, while dust, leaves and trash accumulating on the sidewalk makes it anything but desirable. Further down the sidewalk the grassless terrace has washed until the sidewalk is covered with mud in many places, and the terrace is now in a condition where a hard rain will almost ruin it unless the Commissioners give prompt attention in making the needed repairs.

Owing to the lack of sod and so much shade that grass will not grow, a concrete block wall along the sidewalk is one of the solutions to the problem of restraining the terrace from washing down upon the sidewalk.

Senator Dixon Will Quit Bull Moose Movement

Rumor Says He Will Return to Stand Pat Organization.

Washington, July 19.—Senators are discussing a report that Senator Dixon of Montana, manager of Roosevelt's campaign for nomination, will not follow the colonel in the new party movement. Dixon is said to believe it best to establish progressive principles through a fight on stand-pat control of the Republican party. Information as it comes to the senate is that Roosevelt induced Dixon to remain in charge until the progressive convention Aug. 5 in Chicago.

MAY SELECT DEMOCRAT

Dixon Mentions Several as Roosevelt's Running Mate.

New York July 19.—Senator Thomas Dixon, leader of the National Progressive party, indicated that a Democrat might be nominated for vice president on Aug. 5 in Chicago when Colonel Roosevelt is to be named for president. There were a dozen or more names, he added, that were being discussed.

In speaking of the situation generally, Senator Dixon repeated what he has said before, that the fight next November would be between Roosevelt and Wilson. "Taft will not get one electoral vote, in my opinion," he said.

An advisory committee, which probably will have State Chairman Barnes at its head, will be chosen at a meeting to be held today at the Waldorf-Astoria by the subcommittee of the Republican national committee. This advisory body will help Charles D. Hilles, the new national chairman, in running the Taft campaign. Powell Clayton of Arkansas is the chairman of the subcommittee.

Surrender a Surprise.

The surrender of Rose was a surprise, and no man seemed to be more surprised than Lieutenant Charles Becker, who had not been home all night and who appeared to be unwilling to explain what kept him from his bed.

Rose drove up in a taxicab and surrendered to the police. When he appeared, Commissioner Waldo ordered Rose taken down stairs before Deputy Commissioner Dougherty and Inspector Hughes, and these officials put the gambler through a long cross-examination.

Inspector Hughes summed up as follows the facts brought out by the examination of Rose: "Rose came here because we had sent to him 'Bridle' Wasp and the information that if he were a wise man he would walk down to police headquarters. He says he did hire the gray car owned by Libby and Shapiro and used by Rosenthal's murderers, but he denied positively that he was in the car when it went to the Metropolitan."

Business Brisk On B. & O. Railroad

Traffic on the B. & O. has been unusually heavy recently, and many extra freights have been placed into commission, as the regular freights have been taxed to the limit.

A few days ago three monstrous moguls pulling nearly 100 cars passed through over the line headed west. So heavy has the work been that new men have been added at some of the stations to assist in handling the increased business.

Profane Language Not Excusable

The use of profane and obscene language is never excusable, but the use of it where women can not help from hearing it is especially objectionable. All men, who have this disgusting habit are too careless about when and where they indulge in it.

Men when they gather in groups on the street often swear vigorously. Women passing by cannot help from hearing the foul language. Also men at times in their places of business when no women are present use foul language and speak so loudly that women in adjoining buildings and even across the street cannot help hearing it.

While we are certain that this is usually due to carelessness and thoughtlessness; still it is offensive to the women and degrading to the men.

There is no habit that grows on one more than swearing. Some men are so addicted to it that they can hardly express themselves without using an oath in most every sentence. When foul language continually comes from the lips, the thought must become foul. The use of such language is certain to lower the moral standard of the user. It also lowers the user in the estimation of all who come in contact with him. Think of the people you know, who are given to this habit and while some of them are men of high standards, high ideals and strong character, is it not true that they are generally men of low thoughts immoral and have weak characters.

And we all know that an oath never added anything to any statement, never made any statement stronger.

Women are entitled to walk or drive along the streets, work in offices and places of business without being insulted, without being frequently embarrassed by hearing foul and obscene language.

As we walk along the streets we frequently hear men who are talking on the street swear awful oaths or hear them from people inside of buildings. These men cannot know that no women are around, all they know is that they are not talking to women.

Even the man who swears condemns it in others and knows that it is an injury to himself.

It is a senseless, disgusting and degrading habit. It is offensive to others and some means should be devised to put a stop to it, at least on the public streets and in places of business, where women cannot help hearing it. It is a violation of the law to use profane, obscene or indecent language and the law should be enforced.—Exchange.

Business Brisk On B. & O. Railroad

Traffic on the B. & O. has been unusually heavy recently, and many extra freights have been placed into commission, as the regular freights have been taxed to the limit.

A few days ago three monstrous moguls pulling nearly 100 cars passed through over the line headed west. So heavy has the work been that new men have been added at some of the stations to assist in handling the increased business.

Profane Language Not Excusable

The use of profane and obscene language is never excusable, but the use of it where women can not help from hearing it is especially objectionable. All men, who have this disgusting habit are too careless about when and where they indulge in it.

Men when they gather in groups on the street often swear vigorously. Women passing by cannot help from hearing the foul language. Also men at times in their places of business when no women are present use foul language and speak so loudly that women in adjoining buildings and even across the street cannot help hearing it.

While we are certain that this is usually due to carelessness and thoughtlessness; still it is offensive to the women and degrading to the men.

There is no habit that grows on one more than swearing. Some men are so addicted to it that they can hardly express themselves without using an oath in most every sentence. When foul language continually comes from the lips, the thought must become foul. The use of such language is certain to lower the moral standard of the user. It also lowers the user in the estimation of all who come in contact with him. Think of the people you know, who are given to this habit and while some of them are men of high standards, high ideals and strong character, is it not true that they are generally men of low thoughts immoral and have weak characters.

And we all know that an oath never added anything to any statement, never made any statement stronger.

Women are entitled to walk or drive along the streets, work in offices and places of business without being insulted, without being frequently embarrassed by hearing foul and obscene language.

As we walk along the streets we frequently hear men who are talking on the street swear awful oaths or hear them from people inside of buildings. These men cannot know that no women are around, all they know is that they are not talking to women.

Even the man who swears condemns it in others and knows that it is an injury to himself.

It is a senseless, disgusting and degrading habit. It is offensive to others and some means should be devised to put a stop to it, at least on the public streets and in places of business, where women cannot help hearing it. It is a violation of the law to use profane, obscene or indecent language and the law should be enforced.—Exchange.

Knights of Pythias Plan Innovation

Indianapolis, July 18—With the view of adding numbers to its organization, the supreme assembly of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, at its meeting here today, decided to petition the supreme lodge to reduce the minimum age requirement from 21 to 18 years. The petition will be considered by the supreme lodge at its meeting in Denver next month.

Major General Arthur J. Stobart, of St. Paul, was re-elected commander of the uniform rank.

The assembly, which is composed of 24 brigadier generals, voted to erect an heroic statue of the late James J. Carnahan, who was major general from 1877 to 1905, at Lafayette, Ind., where he organized the first battalion of the organization. The statue will cost $25,000.

New Record Made In Foreign Trade

Foreign commerce of the United States for the fiscal year 1912 was greater than ever before, new high records being established for both imports and exports. The value of merchandise entering free of duty also reached an unprecedented total. The years' trade figures, made public today by the Commerce and Labor department's bureau of statistics show the imports $1,653,426,174 and the exports $2,204,222,088 in value. Imports exceeded the former high record, that of 1910, by about $100,000,000, while exports exceeded the 1911 record by nearly $155,000,000. These totals added to the value of the trade of the United States with Porto Rico and Hawaii would make a grand total of about $4,000,000,000. Imports entering free of duty were valued at $881,743,144, exceeding by $105,000,000 the former high record of free imports, that of 1911. Non-dutiable merchandise formed 53.32 per cent of the total imports, the percentage being larger than ever before, except during the operations of the McKinley tariff law, when sugar was imported free of duty. The excess of exports over imports in the fiscal year was $550,795,914, against $522,000,000 last year, but was less than that of 1908, 1901 or 1898.

Mr. Norris Fussed Up Will Stay To the End

Refuses to Quit Race, but Demands New Primary.

Washington, July 19.—The calling of new primary elections to decide the right of Roosevelt electors and pro-Roosevelt candidates to remain on state Republican tickets is the solution of the political mixup suggested by Representative Norris, the Nebraska progressive.
"It is claimed that because I refuse to admit and denounce the alleged renomination of President Taft, I should withdraw from the ticket as one of the Republican candidates," said Mr. Norris in a letter to John L. Kennedy of Omaha, chairman of the Nebraska Republican state committee. He says he refuses to accede to demands for his withdrawal as the Republican senatorial nominee at the behest of a "few self-constituted and self-appointed leaders when most of the censurers of Republicanism are federal officeholders."

CZAR'S WARDROBE COSTLY

The czar of Russia is the European sovereign who spends most on his wardrobe. The tailor who makes his ordinary suits says the net annual profit from them is $10,000, and the army tailor who is responsible for the uniforms and court dress makes $15,000 a year. His majesty never puts on a suit more than three times, and each one costs about $60. For silk hats the czar pays $26, and $10 a pair for gloves. Every year, it is stated, he purchases a sable cape costing $2,400. King George, on the other hand, is one of the most economical of living monarchs, allowing himself only $20,000 a year to dress on. This sum is spent annually by the kaiser on uniforms alone. The German emperor, however, pays very little attention to his civil wardrobe. He never pays more than $35 for a suit, which he thinks nothing of wearing thirty times. The principal luxury in dress he allows himself is in neckties.
With the king of Spain the favorite article of dress is silk shirts, in which he always hunts, and of which he buys many dozens every year at $30 each. The most frugal of all the crowned heads in the matter of clothing is the king of Norway, who spends no more than an ordinary well-to-do citizen.

GREATEST LAND OWNER

The greatest land owner in the world is Sydney Kidman, a cattleman of Queensland, Australia, whose runs aggregate 50,000 square miles. This immense tract, greater in extent than the state of Pennsylvania, he admits is "larger than any one man should have." Kidman, when a boy of thirteen years, left his home at Adelaide to seek his fortune. He secured work as a cowboy at five dollars a week. He finds the atmosphere of cities hard to breathe and is never so happy as when traveling in a buggy across the huge tracts where he is monarch of all he surveys.

The extent of the use of automobiles in New York city may be estimated from the fact that 12 per cent. of the dust collected from the city streets is pulverized rubber.

HAS 20 MINUTES SUNSHINE

There is a busy town of 500 inhabitants in Colorado where the sun shines but 20 minutes out of each 24 hours. This town is River Portal. It is located in Gunnison canyon and is the point from which the great Gunnison tunnel was run that the waters of that river might be conducted to the deserts beyond the mountain range. The Gunnison canyon was steep and precipitous and opposed great difficulties to the engineers who sought to divert its waters. These engineers cut a road in the solid rock of the canyon's side and at the foot of that road planted a town. This town was the headquarters for the spectacular engineering enterprise that they had in mind. In the town lived the working force which was driving the tunnel through the mountain.

This town was perched upon the piece of ground at the foot of the great cliffs that was most nearly level. Even this spot, however, offered an opportunity of placing the dwellings only in an irregular way and one above the other. Here in the mountains has existed for four years a busy little village with all the elements of modern civilization brought with it into this isolation. In the picture Uncle Sam's public school appears as the highest building in the right hand background.

The strangest thing about this village is the fact that it has but 20 minutes of sunshine every day. This is due to the precipitous walls that rise on each side of the stream and shut out the rays of the sun. There is the brief period of 20 minutes between 11:20 and 11:40 when the sun peeps over the bluff on the one side of the stream and before its rays have been cut off by the high cliffs on the other side. This one short span of sunlight is all that these people of the canyon get year in and year out. Artificial light bills run high here.

Banish Two Members For Falsely Accusing Officer.

Columbus, O., July 19.—Sharp was the ax wielded by delegates to the convention of the International Protective Association of Retail Clerks when two members were ousted from the association for making a vicious attack through the press upon H. J. Conway of Lafayette, Ind., the international secretary and treasurer.

The two who felt the keen edge were Charles P. Gaede, former secretary of district No. 1 of Illinois, who is now in business in Chicago, and Miss Susie Walgamot of Denver, formerly employed in the office of the secretary.

Gaede was relieved of his office as secretary of the Illinois district, at the instance of Mr. Conway, on the ground of incompetency. Favoritism was one of the charges he made against Mr. Conway.

GIRL DIPLOMATS IN A 'BUS

How Question of Paying the Fare Was Settled to the Satisfaction of All.

Four girls boarded a southbound bus on Fifth avenue, the other afternoon, and from their conversation it was evident that they were acquaintances who had met after a matinee. The bus jerked its way down one block, and then the guard, with his little nickel money box, stuck his head in the door and looked about him.

"Oh, I have just the right change," cried the tall dark girl.
"Well, I haven't any change and I wanted specially to get some, so please let me pay," urged the little blonde.

The girl with the red hair opened a purse in which four dimes jostled sparingly against a dollar bill.
"Do let me pay them," she begged, politely, "I really would so much rather."

"But I have the change, and that makes it so much easier," insisted the large brunette.

"I have the change, too," murmured the red-haired one.

"But won't you please let me get this bill changed?" begged the little blonde, again.

The girl with the red hair made a skillful effort to extract the four dimes from her purse, without showing that only a dollar remained behind.

"Please, let me," she said again.

The tall blonde with broad shoulders looked from one to the other of the girls with change, and then across to the small person who wanted some, and smiled blithely.

"I don't know what you are going to do about it, all of you," she remarked. "But I know what I am going to do right now. I am going to pay my own fare."

She slipped a dime into the nickel money box and the others sighed in relief.

"Then," said the tall brunette, and the little blonde, and the girl with the red hair, "so shall I!"

An Alternative.

A suggestion has been made to the militant suffragettes that, as an alternative to window smashing, women should express their indignation at being denied the vote by refusing to be given in marriage. "Let the ladies of the land," says the masculine maker of the suggestion, "politely, but firmly decline offers of marriage until the votes of women are as secure on the statute books as the votes of men, and I warrant that the country will come to heel as quickly as it has come to heel at the bidding of the miners."

Homer Dixon, rural mail carrier on Route No. 3, out of Chillicothe, was caught in the same cloud burst which swept the Good Hope vicinity Wednesday afternoon, and escaped death in a most miraculous manner.

Dixon was driving along the road and was just in the act of crossing a stream which is ordinarily a few inches in depth, when a wall of water several feet high bore down upon him, swamping horse, wagon and driver, and carrying them down stream for 200 yards before Dixon escaped.

The horse also made its escape, but all of the mail was lost and the wagon wrecked. In the hill county it is not uncommon for a cloud-burst to send a wall of water rushing down the narrow ravines carrying everything in its path.

Indiana, A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, Judge William R. King of Oregon and Robert S. Hudspeth of New Jersey.

Members from outside the national committee: Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, Senator Joseph A. O'Gorman of New York, Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Maine, Congressman Albert S. Burleson of Texas, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and William G. McAdoo of New York.

Wilson Names Advisers.

The committee at present therefore sizes up as seven from the national committee as chosen by the states, or eight with Mr. McCombs, and six from the outside. The new members who were selected by the 10 men, after Governor Wilson through Chairman McCombs had named them, are: Colonel Ewing of Louisiana, Judge W. R. King, Senator Reed and Congressman McGillicuddy.

By the appointment of Senator Reed as a member the governor for the first time went outside the list of men who were his warm supporters. Senator Reed put Champ Clark in nomination at Baltimore and stuck to his fellow Missourian to the last.

Further announcement by the governor was that the selection of a vice chairman of the national committee and of a treasurer will be postponed for a time. New York city will be national headquarters, with Chicago and one other far western city as branches. There is such a fight for the honor in the west that it was thought best not to name the city at present.

In addition to that the big committee was going over the question of what other committees should be appointed. The national committee, it was authoritatively stated, will continue to be the leaders of the party

In the respective states everything was being arranged, it was said, on the understanding that if the governor cared to exercise the power he could veto any measure or method employed in his campaign.

Mooney Declines Position.

Washington, July 19.—Granville W. Mooney, former speaker of the Ohio assembly, has declined the post of assistant secretary to President Taft, to succeed Sherman P. Allen of Vermont, who was nominated for assistant secretary of the treasury. Mr. Mooney was recommended for the position by Senator Burton, but declined because he wished to stay in Ohio. It was said that another Ohio man might be selected.

Cincinnati, O., July 19.—Cincinnati and Boston broke even in a double-header here. The visitors took the first game by 8 to 2 and the locals the second by 7 to 1. Poor fielding by the locals and hard hitting of the visitors won the first game for the latter, while excellent pitching by Benton in the second game helped to annex the second for the locals.

Great Increase In Portland Cement

During the last 13 years the production of cement in the United States has shown an annual increase and the growth of the Portland cement industry has been enormous. This is indicated by the fact that the two-million barrel increase in production in 1911 was the smallest that has been recorded within these 13 years. The total production of Portland cement in the United States in 1911, according to Ernest F. Burchard, of the United States Geological Survey, in the advance chapter on cement from "Mineral Resources for 1911" was 78,528,637 barrels, valued at $66,248,817. Although the increase over the production of 1910 was 1,978,686 barrels, or 2.58 per cent, the total value decreased $1,956,983, or 2.87 per cent. The average price per barrel in 1911 was a little over 84 cents, compared with 89 cents in

TROUSSEAU BOX OF ALASKA

Every woman no matter of what race or nationality is deeply interested in the things pertaining to her marriage. Some sort of trousseau is considered necessary, whether it be trunks full of flimsy lingerie or only a necklace of beads or sea shells. The Alaska Indian girl, not having a multitude of closets in her tepee, to hold her finery, provides herself with a trousseau box, which she usually makes herself, and is much concerned over its structure. While the bride-to-be is busily attending draperies and embroidering linens for the new home, Narada is designing and painting her wonderful box. Usually it is about 12 inches square and 18 high, made of carefully selected wood, showing all of its beautiful graining, smoothly finished inside and out, neatly fitted with a cover and decorated in symbolic designs with red, yellow and black paint. Into it are put not the flimsy white things so dear to her white sister, but her beautiful beaded moccasins, her carved silver bracelets, her neck chain made of walrus' teeth and her soft, carefully cured parka. This parka is made of fur, often of the most valuable, and richly trimmed with a contrasting one. Everything which she values is kept in this box.

Marvels of Mechanism.

"Wonderful age of invention!" exclaimed the man who got out of the cab.

"You refer to the automobile?"
"No; the taximeter. When a man wants to produce a neat job of mendacity, he does it by machinery."

Where Divorce Was Futile.

"In ancient Greece when a man was divorced the law provided that he must not marry a woman who was younger than his first wife."
"Did they ever have a divorce case in ancient Greece?"

The Reason.

"Why," asked the irate cook, "are people always coming into the kitchen when I'm making bread?"

"Because," answered the facetious butler, "they think it right to come to you in your hour of knead."

Too Loud.

"That operatic basso has a powerful voice."

"Powerful? I should think so! Why, when he was singing his solo, we couldn't hear a word anybody in the box was saying."

The Explanation.

"Why is that acquaintance of yours so fond of the song of The Old Oaken Bucket?"

"Business associations. He is a milkman."

Great Increase In Portland Cement
During the last 13 years the production of cement in the United States has shown an annual increase and the growth of the Portland cement industry has been enormous. This is indicated by the fact that the two-million barrel increase in production in 1911 was the smallest that has been recorded within these 13 years. The total production of Portland cement in the United States in 1911, according to Ernest F. Burchard, of the United States Geological Survey, in the advance chapter on cement from "Mineral Resources for 1911" was 78,528,637 barrels, valued at $66,248,817. Although the increase over the production of 1910 was 1,978,686 barrels, or 2.58 per cent, the total value decreased $1,956,983, or 2.87 per cent. The average price per barrel in 1911 was a little over 84 cents, compared with 89 cents in
